

Harrow International School comes up tops in the National Outstanding Youth Awards

■ HARROW International School Bangkok is well-known for producing truly outstanding academic prospects with exceptional individual IGCSE and A Level credentials, essential transferable learner skills, and key leadership attributes.

There was plenty of evidence of the school's pedigree last month at The National Outstanding Youth Awards, where three Harrow students received Outstanding Youth Awards from Thailand's Ministry of Education.

Paveenrat Wongprasert (Rainy), in Year 13, received her award for outstanding academic excellence. In 2011-2012 Rainy was recognised by CIE as Best in the World for her IGCSE results in Economics and Geography and Best in Thailand in Biology, Chemistry and History.

In 2012-2013 Rainy won Top in Thailand for IGCSE Physics and AS Level Economics. Rainy has also been offered a well-deserved place at the University of Cambridge to read Economics commencing September of 2014. As Head Girl of Harrow Bangkok this year, Rainy is an inspirational leader who fully grasps the many unique opportunities offered by Harrow, from community service to leadership.

Chatchaya Sakchatchawan (Asia), in Year 13, is a remarkable tennis player and received her award for sporting excellence. Asia is ranked 933 in the ITF World Singles rankings and 1,147 in the Doubles. She is ranked 23 in the Women's Circuit of Thailand and has won many titles over the years.

A diligent, creative girl, Asia has successfully achieved a balance between her extensive co-curricular sporting commitments, academic studies and her leadership responsibilities within Harrow. She is an extremely busy and dedicated student who manages to combine excellent academic grades with full participation in Harrow Inter-House activities, including being a member of the basketball, badminton and dragon boat racing teams.

Nadol Jutasormpakorn (Dol), in Year 7, is an exceptional musician at Harrow. He has won many international competitions including The Mario Egido International Guitar Competition in Viches, Spain, and The Guitarren International Festival in Australia. Nadol received his award for his musical talents, but he is also committed to his academic studies and also makes time for his other passion, basketball. Nadol can often be found joking and playing basketball with his friends outside of his heavy music schedule.

The management and staff of Harrow International School Bangkok are very proud and delighted with the achievements of these students and wish them further success in their future goals.

Harrow is holding an open testing day on Feb 8, applications are invited from prospective pupils aged 10-17 years. Please see www.harrowschool.ac.th for further details
